

Weird and Wonderful

In dreams, the ordinary bends,
A clock melts, the sky pretends.
Shadows dance where none should fall,
Reality shifts—who's dreaming it all?

A teacup floats, a face takes flight,
Objects whisper in the night.
Through altered eyes, the world is new,
A canvas for the strange and true.

Step inside this curious space,
Where time dissolves, and forms erase.
Explore the strange, the surreal, the free,
And shape your own reality.

Weird and Wonderful

In dreams, the ordinary bends,
A clock melts, the sky pretends.
Shadows dance where none should fall,
Reality shifts—who's dreaming it all?

A teacup floats, a face takes flight,
Objects whisper in the night.
Through altered eyes, the world is new,
A canvas for the strange and true.

Step inside this curious space,
Where time dissolves, and forms erase.
Explore the strange, the surreal, the free,
And shape your own reality.

Weird and Wonderful

In dreams, the ordinary bends,
A clock melts, the sky pretends.
Shadows dance where none should fall,
Reality shifts—who's dreaming it all?

A teacup floats, a face takes flight,
Objects whisper in the night.
Through altered eyes, the world is new,
A canvas for the strange and true.

